

How the birth of Christ is different from Christmas.

Christ's birth was an orchestrated, planned event from the beginning of time.

Christmas is an American Holiday that evolved with many man made traditions.

Christ's birth is prophetic, sacred, holy, and supernatural.

Christmas is a seasonal marketing retail strategy for capitalist greed.

One is an annual event while the other has eternal purpose.

One centers around God in human flesh, the other centers around a jolly man in a red suit, a reindeer, and a decorated tree.

One is about a priceless gift given to you, the other is about over spending, and getting material things for ourselves.

Christmas includes events that never took place "in the manger" such as a drummer boy and 3 wise men.

Christ's birth was foretold in exact detail hundreds of years before it happened.

The American modern church has mixed facts and fiction, while Christians today don't know the difference between scripture and pagan traditions.

If the world can mix fairy tales with Biblical accounts, it will surely dilute what is pure and discredit what is truth.

Many have made idols of the traditions to celebrate on a day when it certainly did not happen, even praying a public blessing over those idols.

If Christ's birth is truly prophetic, sacred, holy, and supernatural, shouldn't we take a serious look at what we are doing?

Celebrate the birth of our savior and worship Christ, not Christmas.
